

Prokaryotic DNA Repair Ligases

Abstract

The present invention relates to the cloning and characterisation of a prokaryotic DNA repair ligase, which is shown to possess a range of activities that allow the ligation and repair of non-compatible DNA ends and double strand breaks (DSBs). The enzyme has a range of applications in the manipulation and cloning of nucleic acids.